INTO CAB.

KITZLINGER: Heathrow airport, cabbie, ...

HE LOOKS UP & RECOGNIZES LONELY.

THE DOOR OPENS & CALLAN GETS IN, THEN MERES.

CALLAN: On your way, you know where to go.
KITZLINGER: Just for the avoidance of doubt⁵⁰.

- am I in the hands of the S.I.S. or the K.G.B.?

MERES: Does it matter?

KITZLINGER: To me, yes. I wish to know which higher authority will be reducing you both to the status of filing clerks after I've made my complaint.

CALLAN: You'll get to meet our...higher authority in time. Right now, you're in for a session with the brain benders.

KITZLINGER: Callan, this is folly. I told you about the duplicate list -

CALLAN: I know. Your mates'll send it to the K.G.B.

KITZLINGER: Bishop will be furious!

CALLAN: He'll have other things to worry about.

KITZLINGER: You'll never pull your agents
out in twelve hours - you've sentenced them to death. The K.G.B. will roll them up.

CALLAN: They'll have a job. The agents don't exist!

KITZLINGER: (PAUSES) Don't.....exist?

CALLAN: We haven't heard of a single name on that list.

KITZLINGER: How can you know?

KITZLINGER IS STRICKEN, SILENT AND SICK LOOKING FOR A MOMENT. THEN SUDDENLY HIS HAND GOES TO HIS INSIDE JACKET.

MERES SHOOTS HIM TWICE.

THE TAXI BRAKES TO A VIOLENT HALT, CATAPULTING KITZLINGER INTO MERES' LAP.

THE COMMUNICATION WINDOW SLIDES OPEN AND LONELY'S STARTLED FACE APPEARS.

LONELY: Mr. Callan...!

CALLAN: It was a backfire - drive on.

LONELY: Like hell it was - (HE SEES KITZLINGER) Oh Gord, you've done him in!

CALLAN: Get moving!

LONELY: A lot like the bleedin' Post Office this is! I'm not driving about with a stiff in the back seat...!

CALLAN: Move!!

CALLAN SLIDES THE WINDOW SHUT. THE TAXI STARTS OFF AGAIN. CALLAN HAULS KITZLINGER BACK INTO HIS SEAT. HE IS VERY DEAD, HIS OPEN EYES STARING ACCUSINGLY AT MERES, AN EXPRESSION OF SURPRISE ON HIS FACE.

MERES: He was reaching for a gun -

CALLAN: He was reaching for - (HE STOOPS AND RETRIEVES KITZLINGER'S PILL BOX FROM THE FLOOR) - these! Pills! Heartburn pills! You doused the flames all right - you bloody psychopath!
